Angela Steiner is a music director, pianist, voice coach, copyist, orchestrator and arranger based in Denver, CO. Originally from Wichita, Kansas, she started out playing for Music Theater for Young People and outreach events for Music Theater of Wichita. Currently, she is the music director for RATTLESNAKE KATE a new musical by composer Neyla Pekarek and book writer Karen Hartman which will premiere at the Denver Center for the Performing Arts in 2021. Favorite shows she's worked on include: The Who's TOMMY, SWEENEY TODD, INDECENT and ROCK OF AGES. Previously she has music directed/conducted for Asolo Repertory Theater, Denver Center for the Performing Arts, Little Theater of the Rockies, The University of Northern Colorado, Rocky Mountain Theater for Kids, Candlelight Dinner Playhouse, Midtown Arts Center, Magic Moments and numerous other local Colorado and Kansas theaters. Besides being a musical theater music director, Angela has also continually music directed, lead choirs and played organ for different churches. She was on staff for many years with the musical theater department at the University of Northern Colorado where she taught multiple classes as well as voice and piano and music directed all the theatrical productions. Angela holds a bachelors degree in piano from Wichita State University and a masters in collaborative piano from the University of Northern Colorado.