Previously she has music directed/conducted for Asolo Repertory Theater, Denver Center for the Performing Arts, Little Theater of the Rockies, The University of Northern Colorado, Rocky Mountain Theater for Kids, Candlelight Dinner Playhouse, Midtown Arts Center, Magic Moments and numerous other local Colorado and Kansas theaters. Besides directing musical theater, Angela is the music minister and organist at First United Presbyterian Church in Loveland. She is on staff with the musical theater department at the University of Northern Colorado. Angela holds a bachelors degree in piano from Wichita State University and a masters in collaborative piano from the University of Northern Colorado.

“With the COVID-19 pandemic shutting down virtually all in-person performances, all performing artists are currently facing financial difficulties, so it’s such a privilege be able to reach our audiences in a safe and responsible way during these difficult times. Any support given to performing artists today is much appreciated. The music should be a lot of fun and hopefully lighten everyone’s mood!” said Nebel.

The concert will feature music by Johannes Brahms, Paquito d’Rivera, Jan Koetsier, Daniel Schnyder, and Aesop’s Fables by Anthony Plog; Rev. Amy Morgan of First United Presbyterian will join them as narrator for Aesop’s Fables.

In person tickets are extremely limited and available for $20 by signing up at <http://bitly.ws/9Aro>. Social distancing protocols, including mandatory use of masks for all audience members will be followed.

Online viewing of a live stream of the concert is also available for $5 by signing up at <http://bitly.ws/9Arq>.
